CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

As part of our mission, it has taken tremendous dedication from CEBC & ECIC's team to sustain the connection among our valued members. Over the past months, we've focused on providing an exceptional member service throughout 2020 despite the circumstances we are going through, while prioritizing the well-being of our members and team members to maintain service continuity while protecting their safety. We've worked hard to ensure our Events and committees remained operating all over the year while enhancing our systems and technology through adding virtual live streaming to be able to maximize the outreach due to limited number of attendees.

First we were honored to host H.E. Dr. Rania Al Mashat; Minister of International Co-operation, who spoke about the nature of the work of the Ministry of Cooperation on the principle of "economic diplomacy", as a result of the Egyptian government's efforts in the course of various reforms, as well as the ministry's approach to moving on the path of sustainable development, referring to the difficult experience facing international economies in the light of the Corona pandemic, and the role learned globally and locally.

The Impact of the Covid-19 Pandemic on International Relations was another important topic which we tackled; where H.E. Ambassador Dr. Georg STILLFRIED advised that the big picture won't change as it will still be about United States & China where he thinks globalization will continue as is. He added that the pandemic won't affect the big picture but as we already seen that maybe it will have an influence on the chain of supply, production of some products & medical equipment things but those are not the kind of changes that will fundamentally reorient international relations like the first world war, second world war or the breakup of the Soviet union; its none of this. H.E Ambassador Stéphane Romatet; continued that previous historical crisis we knew when it began and when it finishes but this COVID-19 crisis is different as there is no length to it like we all know approximately when it began but we don't know when will it end and this uncertainty is destroying in terms of confidence as well as destabilizing for our economies, leadership and for our governments. H.E. Ambassador Berger said, "I am honored to serve as the EU Ambassador to Egypt, and offer my heartfelt greetings and deep respect to the people of Egypt." "The EU and Egypt are close partners and enjoy a long-standing friendship and strong relations in many fields," he added, "The EU is Egypt's largest trading partner and the number one foreign direct investor, and we also work together on global issues facing the two sides, like the current [COVID-19] pandemic.

Moreover we were honored to receive H.E. Dr. Tarek Shawky, Minister of Education, where he addressed the Development of the Education System in Egypt, its Opportunities and Challenges; where he advised that his goal is to develop Egyptian education and revolutionize our students' path to cognitive progress, not learning only to get certificates. Dr. Shawky added that the ministry is implementing a different plan through the curriculum that we have developed to push our students to think and not just pass the exams, pointing out that we invested more than two years ago in the implementation of question banks and knowledge banks and the introduction of technology in the educational process. He pointed out that the ministry began investing in digital education beginning in 2016 and we succeeded in bringing content to the Knowledge Bank, and it started in 2018 starting from high school and kindergarten. Dr. Shawky said, "We own the curricula that were created for the new education system, in addition to our having the question banks for the first time, which helps us transfer our experience to dozens of countries along the lines of international" sat certificates". He also confirmed that the ministry now has all the capabilities that qualify it to confront the private lessons mafia and the exam leak mafia, indicating that our goal is to preserve the future of our students.

We hope we were able to accomplish our mission to our valued members & community and to continuously support our vision ..

“International Cooperation... And the Challenges of Economic Development”

During the past years, the Ministry of International Cooperation has succeeded in strengthening Egypt's relations with all partners and international financing institutions, and this has emerged in many continuous agreements to support various economic, social and developmental sectors to contribute to advancing sustainable development efforts. But have the Ministry's priorities and plans changed with its international partners after the outbreak of the new Corona-virus, especially in light of its negative effects that affected all world economies.

In this convention CEBC & ECIC had the honor to host H.E. Dr. Rania Al Mashat; Minister of International Co-operation discussing the topic "Shifting Mindsets through Economic Diplomacy".

In the opening remarks Eng. Motaz Raslan; on behalf of CEBC & ECIC; welcomed our dear distinguished members, guests, ambassadors and his dear friend H.E. Dr. Rania Al Mashat. Eng. Raslan said that corona virus infection rates are constantly declining, and the economy is recovering, and this gives a lot of confidence that things will return to normal.

Then he started his speech repeating some of Dr. Rania's word about the crisis of corona virus where she said that there's no time for pessimism or optimism in times of any crisis and we must work quickly and listen well to all opinions.

Then he continued saying that statement confirming that the Egyptian government's successes in overcoming the repercussions of the new Coronavirus on all sectors were the result of an insightful vision that reflected the strong coordination between all ministries. In all honesty, it can be said that the Corona crisis management team has succeeded with distinction in overcoming many of the consequences of the pandemic and reaching where we are now.

Eng. Raslan added that according to the International Monetary Fund, Egypt may be the only Arab country to achieve economic growth in 2020 in light of the repercussions of the spread of the Coronavirus virus and the only country in the Middle East and Africa that has maintained the credit rating unchanged.

He said: Before I conclude my word, there's a famous saying by the thinker Louis Vernon, "Experience is a hard teacher. She gives the test first... The lesson afterwards", added yes the experience of Corona was a harsh milestone for all the countries of the world. I think that now we have learned our lesson and we can overcome all the repercussions in the future.

H.E Dr. Rania Al-Mashat, Minister of International Cooperation, spoke about the nature of the work of the Ministry of Cooperation on the principle of "economic diplomacy", as a result of the Egyptian government's efforts in the course of various reforms, and the ministry's approach to moving on the path of sustainable development, referring to the difficult experience facing international economies in the light of the Corona pandemic, and the role learned globally and locally.

On the other hand, H.E Al-Mashat explained the extent of the Egyptian state's concern, led by President Abdel Fattah Al-Sisi, that international loans should not exceed safe borders, revealing the role of the "Debt Committee", a committee to follow up Egypt's external debt and the problem of the membership of the Central Bank and the Ministry of Finance, Planning, International Cooperation and Investment, which is tasked with studying the financial conditions of grants and loans in light of the parameters of "loans in safe borders", noting that the crisis has become a consequence of international borrowing, and that it has affected the ability to pay off the ability of many companies and companies to pay, additionally; the individuals with many countries in the distance of Corona seeking loans and assistance from international donor institutions.

Eng. Motaz Raslan, Chairman - CEBC & ECIC ; H.E. Dr. Rania Al-Mashat, Minister of International Cooperation; Amb. Jugoslav Vukadinovic, Ambassador of the Republic of Serbia

H.E Al-Mashat emphasized that the crisis negatively affected not only health in the world but also the international economy, as it cast a shadow on global production chains, which made unemployment indicators increase, noting that Egypt, under these circumstances, is one of the good growth that was able to deal with challenges. It also managed to create a kind of balance, especially with regard to unemployment, noting that the economic reforms that Egypt adopted years before the crisis helped us a lot, noting that the increase in infrastructure spending rates greatly benefited the Egyptian economy.

During the meeting, a question was raised about "green recovery," and the minister explained that the Egyptian government is taking into account international environmental standards in investment projects that it establishes or participates in, especially with the growing global trend in placing standards of environmental recovery on its priority list, noting that this comes in Light of development funds held by Egypt with its international partners.

Also, Ambassador Raouf Saad, Secretary-General of the Arab-European Summit, asked how the government, represented by the Ministry of International Cooperation, is currently dealing with foreign debt, especially in light of the Corona pandemic.

Moreover, Major General Atef Yaqoub, Chairman of the Energy Committee in the Council and former President of the Consumer Protection Agency, spoke about the paramount importance of external support means in raising the capabilities of the state's "government apparatus", referring to the successful twinning experience with the European Union in the past, especially France and Germany in 2018, which resulted in With a strong law for "consumer protection" in Egypt, it is now one of the best international laws in this field.

“Development of the Education System in Egypt ... Opportunities and Challenges”

A real revolution is taking place in the pre-university education development file in the current period, as the government has adopted an ambitious strategy and took bold steps to reform and develop a new education system which can help in building a generation who is capable of innovation and creativity, and can really contribute to achieving sustainable development. During the recent period, we witnessed a radical change in this system & features of development, where the upgrading of the educational process began to appear. However, there are still some challenges that limit the kickoff of the train of educational development in Egypt.

In this convention CEBC & ECIC had the honor to host H.E Dr. Tarek Shawky; Minister of Education and Technical Education discussing the topic “Development of the Education System in Egypt ... Opportunities and Challenges”.

In the opening remarks Eng. Motaz Raslan; on behalf of CEBC & ECIC; welcomed our dear distinguished members, guests, ambassadors and his dear friend H.E. Dr. Tarek Shawky. Then said that for decades the education file has suffered from neglect and many successive governments have not been able to get close to the roots of this thorny file to accumulate its problems and increase its challenges and Egypt is retreating in the indicators of the quality of education, this is because there is no long-term vision and strategy for the future of education and investment in human wealth and we have seen this in conflict resolutions such as the abolition of the sixth grade elementary and double secondary and other solutions that did not come close to the basis of the problem which is human construction.

Then he mentioned that because education is the passport for the future, Egypt realized that the development of education has become an imperative for achieving sustainable development, and the political leadership from day one has put building the Egyptian human being at the forefront of the priorities and has begun to reform and develop education.

Over the past six years, we have seen a radical transformation in the education system in Egypt, where the Ministry of Education has adopted a new approach based on understanding rather than preservation and indoctrination.

Then he continued; these praises did not come out of nowhere...

but it was behind it a vision and a sophisticated thought to put Egyptian education in the place it deserves and here Eng. Motaz mentioned when His Excellency the Minister took over and began to talk about the application of tablets and the introduction of electronic teaching methods, he met a strong attack at the beginning and everyone was betting on his failure in the light of sticking to the traditional education, which hit its roots in educational institutions for decades and we noticed what happened in the first year of application of the exam with tablet in the first grade high school where he faced many challenges and problems in the extent of acceptance of the idea and difficulties of accessing the Internet and others. But with the outbreak of coronavirus and the growing fears of millions of parents for their children to go to school and even to perform the exams was a real test of the feasibility of his new system, which succeeded ably in overcoming the crisis and assured everyone the extent of the dimension and validity of his vision for the future of education in Egypt.

H.E. Dr. Tarek Shawky, Minister of Education, thanked CEBC & ECIC for inviting him & welcomed all respectable attendees then said that his goal is to develop Egyptian education and revolutionize our students' path to cognitive progress, not learning to get certificates.

Dr. Shawky added that the ministry is implementing a different plan through the curriculum that we have developed to push our students to think and not just pass the exams, pointing out that we invested more than two years ago in the implementation of question banks and knowledge banks and the introduction of technology in the educational process.

He pointed out that the ministry began investing in digital education beginning in 2016 and we succeeded in bringing content to the Knowledge Bank, and it started in 2018 starting from high school and kindergarten. “We are now studying English from primary school, and we have succeeded in applying different educational models, including Japanese schools, which are directly receiving attention from the political leadership.» H.E Dr. Tarek said.

He explained that more than 10.4 million electronic exams were conducted during the last two years of high school, pointing out that we had difficulty at the beginning of the application of development, but the students made up for it quickly and made great progress in understanding the development of the educational process.

And he added: “We have a problem with the cultural heritage in our society, which is relying on private lessons, but we were able to provide several digital platforms and we provided live broadcast platforms for educational lessons, all of these tools helped us in the stage of the spread of the Corona virus.”

He pointed out that the implementation of the new education system with the new curricula has reached the third grade of primary this year, and we will finish building the curricula for the rest of the primary school classes in the middle of next year.

Dr. Shawky said, «We own the curricula that were created for the new education system, in addition to our having the question banks for the first time, which helps us transfer our experience to dozens of countries along the lines of international» sat «certificates. He also confirmed that the ministry now has all the capabilities that qualify it to confront the private lessons mafia and the exam leak mafia, indicating that our goal is to preserve the future of our students.

H.E. Amre Moussa; H.E. Dr. Tarek Shawky

H.E. Dr. Tarek Shawky; Eng. Motaz Raslan, Chairman - CEBC & ECIC

He also stressed that the teacher is the basis for the success of the new education system, and there is a training plan for teachers on the new curricula prepared by a group of the best professors at the National Center for Curriculum Development, and we are working to provide all the tools that help the teacher deliver his message. On technical education, He stressed that the new system in technical education depends on the idea of merits, which work to give students specialized skills in their field, noting that the ministry has developed the experience of schools of applied technology in cooperation with the industrial partner to provide a better opportunity for students of technical education.

Ultimately Dr. Shawky referred to the state's interest in developing technical education in order to meet the needs of the labor market and raise the technical competence of labor, in a way that contributes to enhancing the capabilities of the national economy, additionally he called for the necessity of restoring the desire to learn and away from all the unfavorable societal phenomena that harm our students, such as the phenomenon of cheating and the phenomenon of private lessons.

“The Impact of the Covid-19 Pandemic on International Relations”

Amb. Amr El Henawy, Assistant foreign Minister - General Directorate for Security- Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Eng. Motaz Raslan

Never in our lives have we experienced such a global phenomenon that has affected the modern world as the Corona pandemic 'Covid-19'. How will this phenomenon affect human business atmosphere as well as international relations with much less human interaction? No doubt that exploring the adverse effects of lockdowns, restriction to travel and business on the personal and official levels became really crucial to everyone. Humanity and its collective focus has come together on the same existential threat, informed by the unprecedented reach of digital technology, But are we still witnessing a crack in the world order and dynamics of international relations and human interaction?

In this context, Canada Egypt Business Council and the Egyptian Business Council for International Cooperation had the honor to host H.E. Ambassador Christian Berger ; Head of the European Union Delegation to the Arab Republic of Egypt, H.E. Ambassador Stéphane Romatet; Ambassador of France, H.E. Ambassador Dr. Georg STILLFRIED; Ambassador of Austria to Egypt and Amb. Amr El Henawy; Assistant Egyptian Minister of Foreign Affairs who were all discussing the topic "The Impact of the Covid-19 Pandemic on International Relations".

In the opening remarks Eng. Motaz Raslan; on behalf of CEBC & ECIC; welcomed our dear distinguished members, guests, ambassadors and his dear friends H.E. Ambassador Christian Berger, H.E. Ambassador Stéphane Romatet, H.E. Ambassador Dr. Georg STILLFRIED and Amb. Amr El Henawy.

Eng. Motaz Raslan said "At first, I will start my word with a quote, by the writer and philosopher Bertrand Russell..." (The only thing, capable of saving humanity, is cooperation...)

"Surely this is an established fact but its importance appeared even more, with the corona pandemic, that stopped life for months in a lot of countries, which consequently suffered heavy losses, where the repercussions of this fallout, are still protracted on many sectors of the economy in a lot of different countries and these adverse effects are far from being over.

Then Eng. Motaz Raslan mentioned that this situation, will only end, with cooperation, and the discovery of an effective vaccine, that ends this disturbing nightmare there is no doubt, that the corona crisis, revealed the decline of the concept of international solidarity and shared responsibility, in the face of such a pandemic, that is almost threatening the peace and international security, across the globe.

He ended his word saying "Before I end my word I would like to assure that our meeting today, confirms our keenness and desire to strengthen Social Solidarity relations and international cooperation, in the face of any future crises and future adversaries and as I mentioned in the beginning of my word: "Cooperation is the only thing to save mankind"

H.E. Ambassador Dr. Georg STILLFRIED asked; do you remember that pandemic before, how many people were conversant with the Spanish Flu? From my point of view I don't think it's a coincidence... In a modern society that we have now; technology, medicine & the way we think about solving problems are different than the 14th Century; as back then there was nothing much we could do. In the 20th Century we have developed the theory of germs & how illness propagates...etc. the impact in modern times is becoming less than it used to be. When we ask about impact of foreign relations; we need to compare international relations before pandemic situation with a post pandemic situation and see what changed? How much was the impact and I put it to you that the main characteristics of pre-pandemic in politics during the last 3 decades is the so slow emergence of bipolar world that includes the U.S. on one hand & the rising power of China on the other hand; that is the big political story for the last 2 decades.

He added the in terms of business; increasing globalization & the two are connected because China profited most from globalization as its biggest increase in its growth humanity has seen happened in China thanks to globalization. Are we going to change that? Will the bipolar system be any different after than before...? I don't think so; that big picture won't change it will still be about United States & China as I think globalization will continue.

Finally he added that the pandemic won't affect the big picture but as we already seen that maybe it will have an influence on the chain of supply, production of some products & medical equipment things like that but those are not the kind of changes that will fundamentally reorient international relations like the first world war, second world war or the breakup of the Soviet union; its none of this.

H.E Ambassdor Stéphane Romatet; he thanked CEBC for welcoming us in this nice auditorium & continued that previous historical crisis we knew when it began and when it finishes but this COVID-19 crisis is different as there is no length to it like we all know approximately when it began but we don't know when will it end and this uncertainty is destroying in terms of confidence as well as destabilizing for our economies, leadership and for our governments.

Over-and-above he said, we are also facing geo-economic shock with this COVID-19 crisis; it's a crisis of supply, demand and we have seen how far it went with complete disruption of product chains, interruption of trade between China, Europe & The United States...etc. and on a world wide scale. As well as we see different sectors that are deeply affected for example here in Egypt; tourism & air transportation...etc.

This combination of shocking demand & supply is quite new & shows the magnitude of the geo-economic impact of this crisis.

Ms. Rania Wagdy; H.E. Amre Moussa; Eng. Motaz Raslan

Ms. J. Dorra Fiani, President- Knowledge Economy Foundation; H.E. Amre Moussa

I don't think this crisis is eruptional but I think it will just accelerate some evolutions which started already. We also need to pay attention to this new weakening in gas health as geopolitics I'm sorry to say that we have seen a deep lack of leadership from the U.S. as 20 years ago the U.S. would have taken the leadership in cooperation & coordination.

H.E. Ambassador Berger said, "I am honored to serve as the EU Ambassador to Egypt, and offer my heartfelt greetings and deep respect to the people of Egypt."

"The EU and Egypt are close partners and enjoy a long-standing friendship and strong relations in many fields," he added, "The EU is Egypt's largest trading partner and the number one foreign direct investor, and we also work together on global issues facing the two sides, like the current [COVID-19] pandemic."

He noted that he is looking forward to working closely with the EU's Egyptian partners in the government and civil society, as well as the business community and many other stakeholders. With our partners and friends in the League of Arab States we will further deepen our co-operation in the face of common strategic challenges," he added.

The floor was then opened for Q&As addressed from the audience to the ambassadors
