

Higher education in Egypt has suffered from many challenges and problems, and has lost its vision for preparing for the jobs of tomorrow, which has led to increasing unemployment rates over the past years. To address this challenge, the government has adopted an ambitious strategy where it can upgrade the higher education system, which depends mainly on linking the university with the labor market and keeping abreast with global developments, in order to meet the needs of sustainable development plans. However, will the plans work to surpass these challenges?

In this context the CEBC & ECIC have the pleasure to cordially invite you to its upcoming event with:
