

The Egyptian archaeological sector has built a great recovery in the current period, between a series of new discoveries and the restoration of thousands of stolen artifacts, as well as the implementation of many archaeological projects led by the Grand Egyptian Museum, which enhances Egypt's position on the world tourism map, and contributes to support the economic development plans. However in light of all these successes, there are a number of challenges that continue to face the Ministry of Antiquities, on top of which is the funding and the consequences of events going in the region which is definitely affecting the inbound tourism traffic.

In this context the CEBC & ECIC have the pleasure to cordially invite you to its upcoming event with:
